...of his life. His great character and high, dignified sense of duty to all who knew him.
He was a well-rounded man who spoke multiple languages.
A family story goes that one day, Lebrat drove from Port-au-Prince to the mountains to meet his youngest brother, René. They went up into the country and René wanted to see the mountains. When he looked down at where the mountains were, René told him he had to get into the woods and see them when he was alone. René heard this laughter at the moment.
In 1984, René returned to Port-au-Prince, followed by his son in 1986, Canada in 1990, his son in 1994, his son in 1995, his son in 1996, and his son in 1998. He was also blessed with his grandsons.
He had many successful entrepreneurial ventures including real estate, construction, and other financial ventures. He passed away on...
