“ I remember Soeur Dieuseul, aka Grandma as we affectionately called her, with fondness. Our many conversations about life, marriage, children, our walk with the Lord, and of course, my love for Grandma's cooking. I would sit on a stool around her kitchen watching grandma cook badgering her to hurry because I was "starving." Grandma loved to tease, laugh, and feed all who hunger :) She would say, "Manje a poko pare non Soeur Tamara," and I would say, "Oh tann dat sa Grandma? Mwen grangou wi." She would just smile and tell me to wait. I am eternally grateful to have benefited from her wit, wisdom, encouragements, and yes, her superb cooking skills. I'm going to miss Grandma, but I'm grateful to know that she is with the Lord Jesus Christ now; beholding Him face to face.
